

The Hometown Heroes Project

Celebrating our Essential Workers

The Hometown Heroes Project has been designed to acknowledge and show appreciation to as many essential workers from the Town of Wolfville and its surrounding areas as possible.

We hope that by documenting this time in our history, we can preserve the stories of the participants so that future generations can know the unique stories of these brave community members.

For the purposes of this project, essential workers are defined as anyone who worked in the public during the Covid-19 pandemic in services or businesses that remained open in some capacity to serve our community.

Those profiled have been invited to participate by their peers via email and are simply asked to supply an image and write a few sentences about what it was like to work through the recent pandemic.

If you or anyone you know would like to invite an essential worker to participate in this project, please visit the project website at:
